A part of our childhood memories is that of our family sitting in the darkened living room, watching the wall light up with projected memories of home movie film accompanied by the whirring of the movie projector. What did we watch? Images of our birthday party, our outing to the park or the zoo, a building project, ride on the motorbike. Fragments of our childhood, captured, and revisited by our family, strengthening the bonds between us with unfeigned glee and shared laughter. The whine of the projector has now faded into oblivion with the advent of new technology. The plasma screen has expanded to such a gargantuan size that it has now annexed all space and attention in the living rooms of today. What do families watch today? The offerings that are made on commercial channels now feed our brains, and more importantly becomes the childhood memories for our children. Really? Is that what we want them to remember?

Computer Accessories / لوازم الكمبيوتر

Product Descriptions,

All Computer Accessories and Parts,

A peripheral device is generally defined as any auxiliary device such as a computer mouse or keyboard, that connects to and works with the computer in some way. Other examples of peripherals are expansion cards, graphics cards, image scanners, tape drives, microphones, loudspeakers, webcams, and digital cameras. RAM – random access memory – straddles the line between peripheral and primary component; it is technically a storage peripheral, but is required for every major function of a modern computer and removing the RAM will effectively disable any modern machine. Many new devices such as smartphones and tablet computers have interfaces which allow them to be used as a peripheral by a full computer, though they are not host-dependent as other peripheral devices are. According to the most technical definition, the only pieces of a computer not considered to be peripherals are the central processing unit, power supply, motherboard, and computer case.
